

SOLID GOLD LOOKS FOR HOLIDAY FETES

Want to wow 'em at your next holiday soiree? Walk through the door looking stunning/handsome and you'll get everyone talking! Sometimes the holidays can be stressful—running around making sure everything is perfect or just dealing with family or friends that make things difficult. But you can make yourself feel better by knowing at the very least you can be the most chic and saavy guy or gal in the room. This holiday season don't scrimp on razzle-dazzle metallics or scrumptious faux fur—Opulence is in! Show it off during party season!

Thanksgiving is no time to pull on elastic waistbands (unless of course your donning some leggings). Avoid the temptation to splurge at dinner and opt for some high-waisted trousers that will nip in your waist and make your legs a mile long. For this special day burnt orange, mahogany, espresso, and gold are hi-waist / hi-style terrific hues to don that compliment the season. Try a trouser-style brown tweed (or similar) number paired with a rich brown silk blouse (conservative) or a sparkly number (more wild). Finish your look and glow at the dinning table with golden jewelry and some spunky gold sandals or pumps (brown will do if you don't have gold.) If you simply MUST wear your beloved leggings get funky (and daring) with gold ones gilded leggings paired with an espresso be-jeweled tunic. Downplay the loud leggings (that may stir controversy) with some round-toe t-o-y-o-u-r-k-n-e-e boots.

Skip espresso tunic bracelets and necklaces on this one and stick to some gold hoops or dangles. Gobble! Gobble!

Forgo the pants at your December holiday parties! These more glam events call for a swiny cocktail dress, flashy accessories, and killer heels. Keep with the gold/metallic trend and you're sure to be the life of the party. Take a look at a few feisty and festive styles:

Pair with these wow-em accompiants:

Guys you can don golden-hues too—more subtly or course, but you'll still shine! For turkey day rich caramels and camels will do the trick and paired with rich brown tones you'll fit the season. Try a pair of jeans with a thin-whale corduroy jacket in shade of cognac or cocoa. Layer up with a plaid button down (in shades of brown and tan) beneath a thin argyle v-neck. Tuck everything in for a neat look and finish with a nice dark brown belt.

For your dressier look choose brown dress pants with a slight sheen or even a herringbone in a camel shade. Your look will be complete with a crisp white shirt and golden tie. If it's chilly layer up with a nice wool zip-up sweater. These golden and glowing colors are sure to make you a stand-out at your holiday soiree—and keep you chic!

Happy Holidays!
